

SIMON LE RUEZ

Making is at the core of my practice; it allows me to explore the stability and possibilities of form, structure and the material world. Employing the mediums of sculpture and installation, but also a multimedia approach, my work revels in aesthetical concerns which aim to bend the concept of the norm and of a given expectation. I often work with materials which might be deemed as conflicting, in order to create a friction and to push against mainstream standards of beauty. Conventions are further challenged through my use of colour which I use as a material to emphasise a physical presence and to amplify a playful confrontation with space and time. My works explore and celebrate a sense of becoming, of subversion and fragile fruition, they implore the viewer to rethink revolving reference points, be it architecture, cinema, sexuality, longing or escape and to filter them in a way whereby a personal involvement with the work is pivotal. My most recent pieces find inspiration in biological forms and architecture and try to imagine new relationships between the built and the natural world.
